It's a gamble

Dockside gaming debate continues

BY TRACI BONNEY

Dockside gambling: an economic boon, or a predator?

The debate continues as the possibility of local dockside casino gambling becomes more real.

On one side is Charles Lambert, vice president and chief executive officer of Lambert Land Co., who has applied a gaming license and stated an intent to bring a casino ship to Bay Cove Harbour. He said the idea for such a facility at Bay Cove stemmed from the news that the state legislature had made dockside gambling legal. "When the state made it legal, I decided I wanted to be a part of it," he stated.

According to a release published September 16, Lambert also has plans for a resort community to be located on the 233 acres owned by Lambert Land Co. adjacent to Bay Cove Harbour, which the company operates. Lambert envisions a yacht club, hotel/motel accommodations, a shopping village, professionally designed tennis courts and an olympic-style swimming pool, and possibly a golf course to serve as a buffer between the resort area and the nearby residential section on Felicity St.

The research and plans for the resort have been ongoing, Lambert said, but there was "no single event of encouragement" to convince him that people would make use of the resort community.

However, he said he believes a casino ship may be just the

Dedeaux to resign school board post

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County School Board District 2 member Barbara Dedeaux will resign October 1, to pursue an administrative career in the Panama County school district.

Though Dedeaux's resignation will come after the Sept. 7 qualifying deadline for the upcoming general election in November, she insists her timing was personally motivated.

"I wanted to be sure before I gave everything up," said Dedeaux.

A school board appointee will hold Dedeaux's seat until the next general election in November 1991.

Dedeaux said that she moved to Oxford, Miss. this past July to try out a new job.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph in a Thursday, Sept. 13 interview professed no knowledge of Dedeaux's change of residence. Subsequent attempts to locate the District 2 member's current address through the school's administrative office were unsuccessful.

Dedeaux had no explanation for the school board's inability to locate her saying, "I receive mail from them all the time. They have my address and phone number."

Dedeaux took office in January 1987 and retains her seat for six years, until January 1993.

A board member can retain his seat, while living and working in another county as long as he remains a registered voter in Hancock County, explained Randolph.

Dedeaux said, "I can't represent the people well," referring to the distance caused by the move, in citing her reason for resignation.

Randolph: Additional students create burden for school district

BY TRACI BONNEY

More students in the Hancock County School District mean unexpected problems for the county school board.

The board approved at a meeting last week the emergency purchase of a school bus to deal with an increased enrollment of 220 students — mainly in kindergarten, first, seventh and eighth grades.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph said he anticipates the board's being forced to approved the purchases of three or four more buses in the next few weeks.

In addition, the board authorized the purchase of 150 new student desks to accommodate the extra students.

"The increased enrollment puts a real burden on the district," Randolph said. "We have to buy more buses, and use additional classrooms."

The district has the classroom space, he added, but the difficulties of extra enrollment still must be handled.

The board also approved the purchase of 180 student and four teacher calculators for the math classes. The purchases will be made with money given to the district through a federal grant.

In other matters, the board: —approved the employment of Susan Ladner as secretary for special education services —accepted a recommendation to employ additional substitute teachers;

—and authorized the installation of air and rain monitor equipment by NASA on the Hancock High School grounds as part of a Stennis Space Center environmental project.

Nicholson murder victims once Hancock residents

A Nicholson teenager arrested Sunday on charges of murdering four of his family members made an initial court appearance Tuesday in Poplarville.

John Morrell "John Boy" Frierson, 17, was arrested about 1 a.m. Sunday at the Picayune apartment of a woman who Pearl River County Sheriff Lorraine Lumpkin called a "casual friend" of Frierson. The arrest came four hours after a deputy sheriff discovered the bodies of Frierson's grandparents, aunt and brother at the house where they lived.

The victims were grandparents and adoptive parents Ray Merle "Smoky" Frierson, 61, and Mollie Craft Frierson, 56; Pamela Ann Howard, 38; and Joshua A. Morrell, 13. The Friersons were former Hancock County residents who moved to Pearl River County in 1973.

According to Lumpkin, each victim had been shot more than once in the upper torso and the aunt had been raped, while the grandmother had been sodomized and apparently beaten severely with one of two guns found at the home, a 20-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber rifle.

In addition, early autopsy evidence indicated that Joshua Frierson, the suspect's mentally retarded brother, had been sexually abused both recently

To Saudi, with love

Two mothers share their fears and hopes for their military sons

BY TRACI BONNEY

The conflict in the Middle East doesn't seem so far away sometimes.

At least, it doesn't when you have a relative stationed in Saudi Arabia or scheduled to go there.

Sheila McMahon of Diamondhead has a relative stationed there — her 19-year-old son, Private O.J. McMahon. She said she was glad when he joined the army last year, but not happy to see him go into what many believe may become a war zone.

"I'm worried to death," she said. "He told me in his last letter that his unit is being moved south, and that means one of two things: war soon or home soon."

In spite of her concern, Sheila said O.J. seems to be doing well. "He sounds like his old self in his letters. His morale is high. They're working him hard, but he's used to that. The only thing he finds really unbearable is the heat."

O.J. is a member of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, S.C., one of the first units shipped overseas. He left for Saudi Arabia August 7, Sheila said.

While some people worry about family members already in the Middle East, others remain in suspense, not knowing if and when their loved ones will be sent.

Former Pass Christian resident Linda Bonney, the mother of Specialist Robert Bonney, said she has gone beyond being "scared to death" about Robert's being shipped out soon. She said she's still scared, but she now wishes "he would just be sent over there and get it over

Hancock residents plan Saturday beach cleanup

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Final preparations are complete for Hancock County's participation in the National Beach Cleanup Saturday, September 22.

Ellis Cuevas, chamber beautification chairman and MMTTF member is Hancock County chairman, with Martha Van Peski and Darlene Underwood as co-chairmen.

The cleanup is in conjunction with the Mississippi Gulf Coast's "Take Pride Beach Wide" beach cleanup.

The Hancock cleanup will be from 9 a.m. until 11 a.m. following an 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. registration, which will be held in Bay St. Louis at the Ulman Avenue pier, Waveland, Garfield Ladner pier, and Clermont-Lakeshore, Lakeshore Road and Beach Boulevard.

Registration coordinators are Bay St. Louis, Wanda Berthelot, president of the Hancock Extension Homemaker's Council; Waveland, Joanne Lagasse, executive director of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program; and Clermont-Lakeshore, Sharon Schmitt, Hancock Insurance Agency.

"It is important to record the total number of all participants involved in this cleanup, in addition to the amount of debris collected," Cuevas said.

Attempts will be made this year to separate recyclable trash from debris with the assistance of the Gulf Coast Recycling Center, a non-profit

Robert, 21 and the father of a two-year-old son and newborn daughter, is with the 3rd Armored Cavalry Division stationed at Fort Bliss in El Paso, Texas. Part of the unit has been sent, and the remainder is expected to be shipped over any time now.

Linda said Robert still doesn't know when his unit will leave. The scheduled departure date is constantly changed.

"He knows he's going. The equipment has already been sent. He just doesn't know when he will go."

Robert told her Tuesday that he could be overseas anywhere from six months to two years, she said. Even though he has only 18 months left in his enlistment period, the army could require him to stay two years.

Linda said her son is in good spirits. She chuckled and commented, "He's going from the sands of the Gulf Coast to the sands of El Paso, and now to the sands of Saudi Arabia."

"He won't be homesick for sand."

Following a dream

When you were a kid (pardon me, I mean a child; I don't think we have any goats among our readers), did you know what you wanted to be when you grew up?

I did. Of course, I went through that stage all children go through, where they want to be a doctor one minute and a firefighter the next, but at the age of seven, I decided I wanted to be a writer.

I wasn't going to be a reporter, though. I was going to be a writer.

You know what I mean. Many reporters and journalists suffer at one time or another, usually when they're young and stupid, with the delusion that the only real writers are those who pen and publish best-selling novels (or these days, computer and publish best-selling novels).

Or perhaps they think a real writer is one who creates poetry that becomes world-famous and gets the poet mentioned in some poor tortured student's literature book after the poet has died.

Well, I finally shook that ridiculous idea (obviously, or you wouldn't be reading this column).

My next grandiose delusion was that I would never "ghost write" a book for anyone. My thinking was that if I wrote it, I wanted my name to be on it. Well, guess what? I am now in the process of ghost writing a book for a friend. I hope I'll have it done by the time he and his wife leave for Venezuela in the next couple of weeks.

I have to give my friend credit, though. He is allowing me to put my name in it — you know, one of those "By So-and-so, As Told To Such-and-such" type of things.

Interesting how we end up doing, and yet not doing, what we don't want, isn't it? Our dreams, formed in the ignorant superiority of youth, tend to be re-shaped and tempered by time and experience, until we find ourselves not only doing what we vowed never to do, but actually enjoying it.

So, to my younger readers, I just want to warn you not to be organization.

Dianne Hunt, state marine debris coordinator, said Cat Island, which is privately owned, will be excluded from this year's cleanup.

The barrier islands of Horn, Ship, Petit Bois, Round and Deer will also be cleaned under the Adopt-A-Beach program along the mainlands of Hancock, Harrison and Hancock counties.

Cuevas said, "Since several Hancock boaters had been involved in the Cat Island cleanups in previous years, we hope these volunteers will return to pick up along the banks of the river and bayous in the area."

In Hancock, the area for cleanup will be the beach and beach road from the mouth of the Jourdan River to the mouth of Bayou Cadet.

Recyclables will be placed in clear plastic bags and debris in white plastic bags, which will be provided at the registration points.

Waste Management Inc. will have two dumpsters located at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club—one for debris and the other recyclables. In addition, Waste Management and Hancock County crews will collect bags as volunteers place them on the shoulder (land side) of side of Beach Boulevard.

The placement of the bags along the land side of Beach Boulevard is a location change made after this week's committee meeting held Tuesday, Cuevas said.

Each group of two volunteers is urged to fill out a data card on the first bag of debris collected and not separate recyclables on this one bag only.

The data card will be used by the Center for Marine Conservation, which plans to get tough this year on offensive sources of marine debris.

Hunt stated, "Your cooperation and serious consideration of completion of the data card is one of the most important aspects of our cleanup."

Safety is being stressed to all volunteers. All children should be accompanied by a parent or adult.

Volunteers are urged to wear shoes and gloves, shade themselves, and watch out for snakes and broken bottles. "You should watch your step, keep your distance from beached drums, avoid heavy lifting and not handle beached animals or dead fish," suggests published guidelines.

Plastic bags, data cards, instruction cards and some gloves will be available for participants.

Recyclables include all colors of glass, aluminum cans, clear translucent milk containers, water bottles and jugs, plastic fishing lines, all plastic with HDPE on bottom of container, "P.E.T." bottles, and plastic oil containers.

Volunteers in Hancock will be given a slip of paper for a free hot dog and coke, beginning at 11 a.m. at the head of the Garfield Ladner Memorial pier. Ray Kidd is in charge of the refreshments to be vended from a "Coke Wagon."

Data cards may be turned in at registration stands or at the party.

Among the groups committing to participate in the Hancock Cleanup include, the Bay-Waveland Garden Club, Bay St. Louis Rotary Club, John C. Stennis Space Center's Dive Club, Our Lady's Academy Environmental Club, Bay Senior High's Rotary Interact Club, Hancock High School's Jobs for Mississippi's Graduates and several individuals.

A Trash Bashers-Beach Cleanup Volunteer Party is also planned for everyone between 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday afternoon at Point Cadet next to the Marine Education Center in Biloxi.

There will be free food, soft drinks and live music.

Groups can pre-register by calling the chamber at 467-9048 or Ellis Cuevas at 467-5473.

City to revamp computer system

BY TRACI BONNEY

As an interim solution to its computer woes, the Bay St. Louis city government sought and gained approval from the city council to order two small personal computers instead of one larger one.

Mayor Edward Favre said the computer system currently in use by municipal offices lacks some of the flexibility needed for spreadsheet and other record-keeping functions. While the city researches the pros and cons of upgrading or replacing the system, employees need a computer to use.

The city had planned to buy one large personal computer that would stand apart from the new or upgraded main system, but after some consideration, Favre and Municipal Clerk Kay Johnson decided that a better approach would be to purchase two smaller computers that could interface with the main system.

Therefore, Favre recommended buying two small personal computers, a dot matrix printer and a letter quality printer. The council unanimously accepted his recommendation.

In other matters, the council: —voted to approve one application to purchase property from the city, and hold two purchase applications;

—accepted a bid from Coast Material for concrete for the city for the next six months, and approved Fore Concrete's bid as an alternate;

—authorized an order for new police department vehicles;

—and discussed several property cleanups.

At the conclusion of business, the council recessed to Thursday, Sept. 27.

Postmaster vacancy may be filled soon

The Bay St. Louis Post Office, without a postmaster for some time now, may have the vacant office filled soon, according to a local official.

Ann Broome, sectional center manager at the Gulfport post office, said the position is in its second posting for internal applicants.

"You should have a postmaster within the next month or two," she stated.

Hoda trust fund set at Hancock

A trust fund has been established at Hancock Bank for Lionel Hoda of Kiln, who is in need of a liver transplant.

Hoda, a lifelong resident of Hancock County recently learned of the need of a liver transplant and his insurance will not cover it, because the operation is considered an experiment, Richard Hoda said.

Richard reports it is absolutely necessary for his brother to have the operation in order to survive, as he has a rare type of liver cancer.

"His only hope is to receive a liver transplant and our family cannot afford the expense," Richard added.

Persons wishing to help can make a contribution at any Hancock Bank Branch to the Lionel Hoda Medical Fund.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Football for area high schools moves into the fourth week of play this week, and all local teams are scheduled for action.

Unbeaten Hancock High School will play host to Lawrence County after a scare at Poplarville last week. The game against rival Poplarville was undecided until the Hawks booted a field goal with only 30 seconds left on the clock to give them a two-point victory.

Lawrence County is a new team on the Hancock's schedule and I really do not know what to expect from the visitors.

I am sure head coach Irvin Favre will be ready for Lawrence, and I hope they do take them seriously. Bay High's Tigers will be looking for their first victory of the season at Tiger Stadium when they host Vancleave's Bulldogs.

The young Tiger squad needs a victory to get the push needed to close strong for the season.

New head coach Rocky Gaudin and his coaching staff have been working very hard to find the right combinations on offense and defense and have been playing a lot of young players.

Vancleave has been an up and down team in recent years and it is possible for the Tigers to catch them at a down time and take home their first victory.

St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws tangled with a rugged East Central Hornet squad last week and lost a close one by a 6-2 score.

East Central is a powerful team and it was a defensive battle against them, only the Hornets kept the Rocks from generating any consistent offense.

The Rocks need not to be looking to future games this week when they journey to play the Long Beach Bearcats.

Long Beach would like to rebound this week, and being at home, can give the Bearcats a boost.

Stanislaus has been stingy in letting the opponents cross their goal line this season and only need to generate a little more offense possibly through the pass route.

I am sure head coach Ken Lyons and his Rocks should be ready for the Bearcats.

The Pirates of Pass Christian found the mark last week in racking up 38 points over Sumrall.

This was the third game of the season when the Pirates were able to keep their goal line untouched during regular play.

The only points scored against Pass Christian were by St. Stanislaus in triple overtime play.

This week the Pirates will play host to Mercy Cross. Pass need not take Mercy Cross too lightly, as they have had some very good squads in recent years.

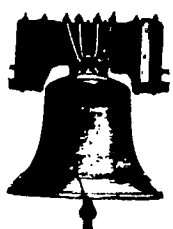

It will be homecoming for Coast Episcopal on Friday when they play host to Riverside of New Orleans.

The game is to be played on the Pass Christian City field with kickoff set for 7:30 p.m.

There will be a homecoming parade beginning at 6 p.m. leaving the Trinity Episcopal Church.

We wish Coast Episcopal's football the best on Friday.

We hope the stands will be filled with local supporters this Friday night for high school football.

Once again we have an election and we are hearing about candidates having signs destroyed.

This is a problem which occurs every election, and the candidates and their supporters get very upset when their signs are removed or destroyed.

Of course, there are rules and regulations candidates must follow when placing signs. For example, they should not be attached to utility poles.

If a person is against a candidate, I suggest he express himself on election day by voting for someone else, not by removing posters or signs.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hancock School Board members spend our tax dollars wisely

Dear Editor:

After reading your editorial of Aug. 26, I picked up the phone and contacted a member of the Hancock County School Board to get the facts. I found the state law allows board members to hire any firm they choose without advertising or getting quotes for such things as insurance, lawyers, architects, etc.

The editorial states that "a good consumer shops for the best product at the most affordable cost. As taxpayers, we have every right to expect our elected (and appointed) officials to spend tax dollars wisely."

This editorial made it look as though the Hancock County School Board did just the opposite, when in essence they have been very conservative with taxpayers' dollars.

The Hancock County School Board advertised for insurance on the new school and the three elementary schools in the Sea Coast Echo, which is our local paper.

Local agencies had the same opportunity to bid on the insurance package as did everyone else. When the bids were opened, the lowest insurance bidder was not licensed to do business in the state of Mississippi; therefore, they chose the next to lowest quote.

The board was well aware of the fact that they did not have to advertise for school property insurance.

The editorial stated it was most disconcerting to hear an attorney remind the board of this law, and tried to make it appear that the board did not know the law relating this fact.

The board was trying to make a point so that Mr. Gex could explain to the members of the press and others in attendance.

The board also advertised for an architect to design the new high school and add classrooms to Murphy and Gulfview.

The lowest quote received was 5.25 percent for the services. This figured to be a savings of approximately $77,000 over the quotes from two local architects who had the same opportunity to bid. By advertising for insurance and an architect the board saved the taxpayers over one mill in taxes.

I can understand wanting to see local business get the jobs within the county, but not at the expense of our school children's education. Every dollar saved goes right back to our children.

People must realize that the school systems today are considered big business dealing with millions of dollars. We do have some very conscientious board members who are trying to fulfill their obligation to the taxpayers and voters who put them in office.

I feel sure that the Hancock County School Board is doing everything possible to give us the most for our tax dollars. The school board is to be commended for their efforts.

Sincerely,
Glenda Humphrey
Hancock County

Supervisors find funds for some roads—but not others

To the Editor:

I could not believe my eyes when I picked up the 9/16/90 issue of the Echo and read the article entitled, "Supervisors approve Diamondhead road work" and learned that our elected officials had managed to find extra funds for road work on Diamondhead Drive.

For those of you not familiar with the area, Diamondhead Drive encircles the golf course.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors on Aug. 17, the first item on the agenda read thusly: "Asphalt Overlay and Striping 2.7 Miles of Diamondhead Drive, Project HC-88." Bids for this work were opened. The high bid was $108,997.73, and the low bid was $106,472.60.

On this day, my first question to the board was, "Did you have to raise taxes to fund this new project?" Ronald Cuevas, board president, answered me with a very firm "No."

This was my next question: "Is this new project to be covered by a new bond issue, and, if so, how is the bond to be funded?" Mr. Cuevas again responded immediately, stating that this project was funded under the old bond issue for Project HC-84, which was in the amount of $1,190,854.33.

With the answer Mr. Cuevas gave me as to funding, imagine my confusion when I read the above-mentioned article and learned the supervisors had to find extra funds for this project.

If you will recall, in an article that appeared in the 4/12/90 issue of the Echo, Michael Lader, District 5 supervisor, indicated it would take a tax increase for road surfacing.

Yet, here we have our duly elected officials allocating money from the county severance account to make up the expected shortfall in road funds so that Diamondhead will have a smooth ride around their golf course. Surprise! Surprise!

I hope most of you saw the picture of the road to the new high school in a recent issue of the Echo. It is a muddy mess. Will the board find extra funds to improve this road? This should tell the voters where the board's priorities lay.

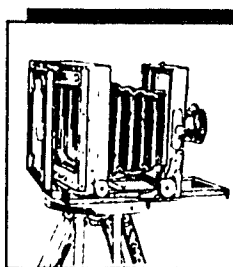

How commendable of the county engineer, Larry Seal, to refuse engineering fees on the Diamondhead project. However, I wonder if Mr. Seal would be as big-hearted with us third-class citizens, if, by some miracle, the board managed to find funds to upgrade our streets.

I urge all voters of Hancock County, not only Shoreline residents like ourselves, who must live with potholes, dirt roads, roads that are like washboards, wait for streets to be graded, grass to be cut, etc., to remember the Diamondhead project when election time rolls around.

Don't forget that the board had to scrounge around, but managed to find the necessary funding. And, let us not forget the infamous "Bayou LaCroix Road" which now also has four new huge drainage ditches.

Yes, at the Aug. 17 meeting, my husband, Clyde, did accuse the supervisors of partiality in road work designation, when he asked the burning question, "Why is there always money for certain areas, but never for others?" Need I say more?

Very truly yours,
(Mrs.) Lorraine B. Taylor
Bay St. Louis

Between 50 and 70 percent of the pecan crop was hurt by Betsy, County Agent O.O. Swords said this week, adding it was not a good crop to start with this year. Otherwise county agriculture did not suffer heavily.

Mississippi plays host to Southern Governors

Mississippi played host to a highly successful meeting of the Southern Governors' Association this month in Natchez, where more than one-quarter of America's governors gave our state high marks.

Not only were they impressed with Mississippi's sights, hospitality and class in putting on this meeting, but they left with a positive impression of what our state is doing to improve the lives of citizens.

The theme of the conference was "Work Force Education: Preparing the Youth of Today for the Jobs of Tomorrow." I chose this theme because as we try to improve education, it is critical that the graduates we turn out have the skills needed by business and industry.

Too often that is not the case in the Southeast or in Mississippi. In fact, a survey of Mississippi businesses last year show that 45 percent of all employers were dissatisfied with current public and private job training programs.

As chairman of the Southern Governors' Association, I made sure that Mississippi was featured prominently during the three-day session. We had two outstanding speakers with Mississippi connections: Melia Peavey, president of Peavey Electronics Corporation in Meridian; and Roland S. Boreham Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Baldor Electric hook to bring people into the planned resort and revenues into the county.

"The area needs an industry of some sort," Lambert commented. "This will mean jobs for local people, and the tax base speaks for itself."

On the other side of the gaming table debate is the Rev. Nathan Barber, pastor of First Baptist Church on Main Street. Barber, an outspoken opponent to dockside gambling, has long maintained that casino gambling will breed organized crime and other problems.

"Casino gambling is nothing more than a predator," he said. "It's always seeking its own."

good, not the good of the community.

"Putting dockside casino gambling at Bay Cove Marina will be like releasing a devastating disease into our community. It will breed criminals, political corruption and organized crime as well as undermine effective and uncompromised law enforcement."

Barber added that local politicians "need to know that they are going to be held accountable for their support or lack of opposition to turning Bay St. Louis into a casino town."

Lambert disagrees with the view that casino gambling will breed organized crime. He said organized crime should not be "automatically saddled to casino gambling," and called the idea a scare tactic.

He added that in his view the state gaming commission, created by the legislature in legalizing dockside gambling, will keep gambling enterprises legal and aboveboard.

Lambert also pointed out that he is a local resident and has owned property at Bay Cove Harbour for the past 10 years. He said he is not "some guy passing through who's taking advantage of an opportunity to make a quick buck."

Remaining carefully neutral is the City of Bay St. Louis and its mayor, Edward Favre.

He would not comment on the pros and cons of dockside gambling or the plans for Bay Cove Harbour, other than to say that the harbor is "possibly one of the better sites along the Bay. It's well protected from storms and rough weather, and access to the area is easy."

He also said a casino ship is a possible catalyst for the development of a resort community.

Favre stated that the city has taken no official stand concerning dockside gambling. "We're still weighing the possible benefits against the potential problems."

How hot is hot? Peppers tell all

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

How hot is hot? Well after a couple of weeks of weather like we had in early September we could answer with, "It's as hot as Labor Day in Mississippi." The question, however, was asking about the weather, it was asking about hot peppers.

How hot is hot? It depends on who is doing the tasting. What is hot to one person might be relatively mild to the next. It also depends on the food you're accustomed to eating, and this frequently has to do with where you hail from.

A dish of crawfish etouffee during a job interview in Louisiana 25 years ago was so spicy hot it almost killed me. Yet when I moved to Baton Rouge I met a lady from Cuba who could eat tabasco peppers.

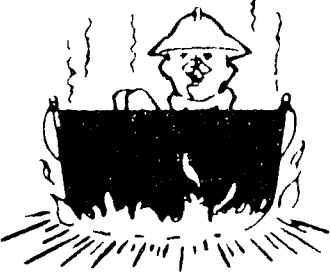

Late summer and fall gardens produce a lot of hot peppers. The plants appear to be at their best in the warm, dry days of September and October.

Among the types of hot peppers most frequently planted by Mississippi gardeners are jalapeno, cayenne and chili.

These peppers have a number of different uses and can be used fresh for seasoning, pickling, sauces and flavoring vinegar, or dried for decoration and later use.

There is considerable variation in shape among the different types of hot peppers. Some are long and slender; others are ball-shaped.

Some look like blunt cones and others are long and thick. Some have relatively thick fruit walls like the jalapeno and some have thin walls like chili peppers.

Most types of peppers start out green and change to red when they mature, but there are other colors to be found. The variety Hungarian Yellow Wax Hot, frequently mistaken as Yellow Banana Sweet, starts out with light green peppers that turn yellow and eventually red. Some hot peppers may show purpling on the green fruit before turning red.

Hot peppers are not only an important vegetable crop, they're also important to the bedding plant industry. There are many dwarf plant types with attractive round- or cone-shaped fruit held above the foliage.

They are used as bedding and pot plants. The fruit of these ornamental hot peppers appears in a rainbow of colors and has the added advantage of being edible as well as attractive.

To answer the question, "How hot is hot?", many people claim the variety Tabasco to be the hottest pepper. This pepper is used to make the world famous tabasco sauce, and production, while I was in Louisiana, was pretty much limited to Avery Island in Iberia Parish.

It wouldn't be hard, however, to find an argument

Welcome to Court Street Cuisine. Please check your impatience at the door.

If you want something to "inhale," go to one of the fast-food joints on Hwy. 90. If, on the other hand, you want "simply outstanding" dishes in a relaxed atmosphere, try Court Street Cuisine.

The restaurant, located inside the attractive

That's just as well, though. You aren't supposed to find them.

If you ever wanted to go international with a meal, here's your chance. The day menu, which is served from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, offers a variety of American, Italian and even Mexican food.

Among the appetizers, or "Amusements," currently offered are succulent deep fried crab claws accompanied by tangy cocktail and tart tartar sauces, and a tart made with baby shrimp in a delicate Dijon and dill sauce, piled into a toast cup.

Joan Ferrara, owner of the restaurant, changes the menu each week, so you never know what interesting dishes will be featured.

Last week, though, three entrees graced the offerings. Listed in the "Let's Do Lunch" section of the hand-written menu were red beans and rice, a dish called "Quiche Me Quick" and a Fettuccini Alfredo that will melt in your mouth. Pure butter, fresh dairy cream, a touch of garlic and freshly grated Parmesan cheese give the dish the sassy/mellow taste favored by fettuccini lovers.

An Italian salad topped with homemade herb croutons completes the delicious selection.

If you find that summer is the time for salads, then a selection from "Salad Daze" may be more to your taste.

A variety of salads gives you a choice between Mexican (the Tijuana Taco Salad), Italian (Debbie's Favorite Salad), "Polynesian" (Chicken by George's Friend), the spinach salad or Caesar salad.

Another salad offered is the Gulf Breeze. Aptly named, it's a light but filling blend of boiled Gulf shrimp, crunchy bacon, chopped boiled eggs and a mixture of garden lettuces. The salad is topped by a "dollop" (and a generous one!) of lemon-mayonnaise dressing and homemade herb croutons. This salad could be a meal in itself.

If you do eat just the salad, though, you may miss out on some of the gems in the Court Street Cuisine menu: the desserts!

One is called Claudine's Masterpiece, and it's — well, you could call it "heavenly" or "sinful," depending on your choice of phrase.

One thing it definitely is, and that's a chocolate lover's dream. A moist fudge brownie is topped with a scoop of chocolate ice cream, drizzled with hot fudge sauce and covered with sweet whipped cream. This mountain of chocolate is then drizzled with more hot fudge sauce, sprinkled with chopped nuts and topped with a cherry. Scrumptious!

If you adore chocolate but aren't quite so daring as to attempt the Masterpiece, another delightful dessert is Willie's Chocolate Torte. Said to be from the recipe used by Willie's grandmother, it's made up of a rich chocolate torte loaded with pecans and frosted with milk chocolate fudge. Next to the warm torte is placed a scoop of butter pecan ice cream. The whole thing is topped off with hot fudge sauce.

The chocolate and butter pecan flavors complement each other well, and you'll most likely have to restrain yourself from simply picking up the plate and tipping the entire thing into your mouth.

Other dessert offerings include a lemon ice-box pie that claims to be the Court Street Cuisine specialty; French bread pudding; carrot cake; Mississippi Mud Cake; and the "Dessert Du Jour."

Let's I forget, let's backtrack to the main course. If you aren't in the mood for an entree or a salad, Court Street Cuisine also serves several club and specialty sandwiches, and a selection of New Orleans-style po-boys.

For beverages, you can select wine, champagne, domestic or imported beer, a mixed drink from the full-service bar, or something non-alcoholic, like a soft drink, hot or iced coffee, cafe au lait, homemade root beer or an ice cream float. My favorite is an absolutely delectable iced tea brewed with fresh mint and garnished with a lemon slice.

If you think it sounds wonderful so far, remember that's only the day menu. Items on the night menu, served Thursday through Sunday from 5:30 to 10 p.m., include the day menu's "Amusements" (with the addition of sno balls, made of fresh yogurt filtered, rolled into bite size balls, marinated in seasoned olive oil and served to spread onto crusty bread), and a wide range of entrees and desserts.

The entrees offer a variety of beef, veal, lamb, pork, chicken, pasta and seafood dishes.

The desserts repeat those on the lunch menu, with the addition of freshly brewed Irish coffee.

For beverages, you again have your choice from the full-service bar, fresh coffee and superb iced tea.

Along with your dinner, you can enjoy the music of Colby Fabian, who entertains with almost everything from big band to show tunes to special requests.

One other feature of Court Street Cuisine — and this, I think, is the crown jewel of the restaurant — is its Sunday brunch, served from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. To give you specific menu items would be absurd, since Joan changes them often.

However, I feel safe in saying that whatever it is, it will be good. (Be on the lookout for the maple bacon. It will entrance your taste buds like few foods can.)

that Tabasco isn't anywhere near the hottest pepper around.

Jalapeno pepper has a reputation for being hot but apparently isn't anywhere near as hot as Habanero chili pepper.

According to the Scoville Scale, which I am told is a taste test based on dilution, Jalapeno measures 5,000 heat units on the scale while Habanero measures up to 300,000 units. Now that sounds hot!

There may even be some argument about whether or not Habanero chili pepper is the hottest. Last year I heard a talk by a Jamaican horticulturist from Missouri in which he claimed Scotch Bonnet to be the hottest pepper.

In case you are wondering where all the heat comes from, the natural substance in hot peppers responsible for the pungency is capsaicin.

It is a fat soluble, flavorless, odorless, colorless compound found only in the tissues of the core where seeds attach and in the cross-walls that partition the pepper fruit into sections. Capsaicin is not reported as being found in the fleshy fruit wall.

Planning menus offers variety of nutrition

BY ANN O. RUSHING

When you start planning menus instead of shopping out of habit, you may find your meals begin to include a greater variety of foods than you are used to—particularly foods lower in fat, sugars and sodium. When you've eaten some foods for a long time, the change may be difficult to make. The good news is you don't have to change everything immediately—or give up your favorite foods.

Here are some tips:
—Gradually introduce new foods to your menu. Find out how to prepare new foods so they are as tasty and attractive as possible.

—Look for good substitutes for family food favorites that are lower in fat, sugars and sodium.

—Cut back gradually on your use of salt—when cooking and at the table. Choose fewer salty foods.

Switch from whole to lowfat milk, then perhaps to skim milk.

Thinking in terms of menus doesn't mean meals have to become more complicated either. In fact, they should become easier.

Follow these tips to keep your menus workable:

—Be flexible. Make sure there are meals on your menu that you can fix in minutes. That way, if your schedule changes at the last minute or you're running late, you can opt for a quick meal.

—Write down your favorite food combinations for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Mix and match these items for a variety of daily menus.

—Include some meals on our menu that will leave leftovers you can use to create a variety of other meals the rest of the week.

—Remember, no menu will satisfy everyone all the time—and you won't always be able to eat the way you plan. It's what you do over the long run—day to day, week to week—that matters.

Planning a personal menu that offers a healthy variety of nutritious foods is important for single people as well as families, according to the chief of Human Nutrition Service's Guidance and Education Research Branch, Carole Davis. The Census Bureau says one out of four American households is run by a single person who lives alone—a 20-percent increase from 1980.

Here are some tips from USDA's new public education campaign, "Eating Right... The Dietary Guidelines Way." If you're cooking for one, you may find the following tips helpful.

1. Cook once and eat twice or more. When you fix a meal, make a larger than usual amount. Eat one portion now, then freeze the rest in meal-sized portions and enjoy them later, or use them to make other dishes (soups, stews, chili, etc.).

2. Buy frozen vegetables in one-pound bags. Use what you need for single servings or mix several for an interesting medley.

3. Keep several kinds of pasta on hand. Many cook quickly. Use them for side dishes or in soups. Make single servings or cook extra to add to casseroles. Mix with vegetables and a lowfat dressing for a pasta salad.

4. Share a meal with a friend. You can each bring part of a meal or share portions of leftovers you planned.

5. Explore the supermarket for a fresh "convenience meal." Try a variety of fresh vegetables and fruits from the salad bar, a whole-grain roll from the bakery, and a slice or two of lean meat from the deli. Chase it down with some skim or lowfat milk. For dessert, enjoy some plain lowfat yogurt mixed with fruit.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Bananas, anyone? With the banana bonanza at area supermarkets, I'm devouring this tasty fruit at a rapid rate—not just eating bananas out of hand, delicious as they are, or sliced on cereal or ice cream or what have you, but also as accompaniments to the main dish at mealtime, or as a part of the cooking process.

For example, if you snap up the special savings in turkey breasts (4 to 7 lbs. average) or split chicken breasts, you might wish to bake them with a mixed fruit stuffing in the shallow cavities; or on a bed of mixed fresh fruit, combining sliced bananas, chopped apples or apple slices, chopped orange segments, and pineapple, along with chopped celery, chopped onion and sliced green onions—delicious!

Or, bake whole bananas along with a turkey breast or chicken breasts, or a pork tenderloin or pork chops or Boston butt roast, such as:

BAKED BANANAS

IN FRESH ORANGE JUICE

Place whole bananas (peeled, or course, you know that!) in a shallow baking dish. Pour two tablespoons of fresh orange juice and a teaspoon of fresh lemon juice (small, fresh lemons are a bargain at the stores just now) over each banana. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 10 to 15 minutes, and serve as a meat or chicken accompaniment.

And, at another time—or at the same time, for variety's sake—offer:

HONEY-BAKED BANANAS

Cut the peeled bananas into halves lengthwise, and place in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle a tablespoon of honey (which you've mixed with a teaspoon of fresh lemon juice, I almost forgot to tell you) over each banana. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes. This goes well with the main dish, and is also a good and tasty dessert (a double dipper).

Sometimes I mix up some variety of jelly, such as currant jelly, with a little butter and perhaps a bit of hot water to blend jelly and butter together, and pour over halved bananas, then bake in a hot oven for 10 to 15 minutes. Delicious with pork roast, I think. If you don't agree, use one of the other combinations, or mix up your own—and, tell me about it, please. I always want new ideas!

After "B" comes "C" in the alphabet, and also at the produce—bargain counters, with cabbage on extra-special offering these days. And, perhaps, after you've "slaved" yourself to boredom, you might like to try one of my favorite ways to cook this good old standby.

Of course, you might prefer to saute shredded cabbage or wedges in a bit of bacon drippings, or cook your cabbage in some other way, but try this—I think that you'll like:

CABBAGE AND CREAM

4 cups shredded cabbage

1/4 cup light cream
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Pepper, salt to your taste
Merest dash of ground nutmeg

Cook the cabbage, without adding water, or at least no more than a stingy fourth-to-half-inch at the bottom of the pot, for no more than six or seven minutes, or until barely, barely tender.

Drain as needed, add the cream and butter and heat very, very slowly, stirring ever so gently with a fork. Add nutmeg and pepper as you wish, and enjoy.

Or you might want to cook that cabbage with one of the corned beef brisquets on special this week, along with some of the new-crop Russett potatoes on special at all the stores, for a good old-fashioned and tasty meal.

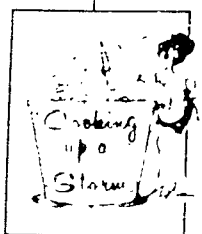

Boneless beef shoulder steak and boneless chuck roasts are offered at good prices, along with beef T-bone or "gravy" steaks. I like to "smother" or braise 'em down with onions and chopped bell (green) peppers and perhaps tomatoes, for an extra-tenderizing touch, along with seasonings of my choice; then combine with the aforementioned potatoes or some of the long-grain rice on special at the stores, and enjoy a delicious but kind-to-the-budget meal.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Although many of us today consider cabbage as just one of our more common, every-day sort of vegetables, it might surprise you to learn that in early days, in ancient Rome, cabbage commanded such high prices that only the very wealthy and high-born or such could hope to enjoy it—just imagine that if you can!

The Romans, and others, also believed that cooked cabbage would prevent hangovers (or whatever they were called in those long gone times), if they ate some of it before their elaborate banquets, at which they knew that the wine would flow freely!

The great Greek philosopher Aristotle is said to have had several helpings of cabbage before he lavished banquets to combat the effects of the wine!

Somewhat, I find it difficult to envision a bowl of cooked cabbage on the appetizer tray at a banquet—or a cocktail or dinner party—but, wait a moment! Cabbage is just one member of the cabbage family—called "cruciferous" vegetables because their blossoms form the shape of a cross.

And, you see, cauliflower and broccoli, also members of the family, are popular on the raw vegetable-with-dip trays we enjoy so much in our time, and so healthful as well, I might add.

(Brussels sprouts, Chinese and bok choy and red cabbage, as well as turnips and radishes, and mustard and collard greens also belong to this extensive group!)

Versatile, adaptable, relatively inexpensive, and always available—perhaps that's why cabbage has been enjoyed by "kings and commoners" alike for the past 4,000 years, for that's as long as history tells us that cabbage has been grown and consumed!

There are far more "pros" than "cons" when it comes to cabbage. The pungent odor, a drawback to many, is easily remedied, as over-cooking is usually the reason. Also, earlier methods of cooking, or over-cooking, took away the pale greenish hue and tenderness. If cooked quickly, you won't have the strong smell, believe me.

The key to fast cooking is to shred the cabbage and steam it quickly for a few minutes, say, just four or five, in almost no water at all, with squeezes of lemon and dustings of pepper and whatever other seasonings suit your fancy and your taste-buds. I like a bit of butter also and perhaps a splash of white wine, and the merest dash of ground nutmeg.

Or, at times I shred a head of cabbage, cook it briefly in a half inch of boiling, lightly salted water for five to eight minutes, until tender. I drain the cabbage, add several cups of light cream, or half and half (depending upon the amount of cabbage—along with a few tablespoons of butter. I heat this slowly, stirring gently with a fork as it heats. I add a dash of nutmeg, along with pepper. (Four to six servings)

Another quick and easy cabbage dish is:
CABBAGE, TOMATOES AND PEPPERS
1/2 medium head green

cabbage
3 onions, sliced
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 bell (green) pepper, cut in one-inch pieces
2 large tomatoes, halved
Pepper, salt, dash of hot pepper sauce to your taste
Saute the onions in the butter or margarine for two or three minutes. Add the bell pepper, cover and cook for five minutes. Cut the tomatoes into halves and the cabbage into four wedges, and add to the onion-pepper mixture. Season to taste, cover and simmer for approximately 15 minutes. (Four servings)

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Rep. Frazier seeking unicameral legislative system

Every eighth grade civics student is taught that the only state that has a unicameral legislature is Nebraska, and that Nebraska embarked on the one-house legislative experiment in 1937.

It's time, believes state Rep. Hillman Frazier of Jackson, that Mississippi scrapped its traditional bicameral legislative system and joined with Nebraska in what could be the wave of the future for state legislatures.

Frazier, who says he is frustrated with the failure of Mississippi's two-house legislature to function effectively and act responsibly, is launching a one-man campaign to get public support for installing the unicameral legislative system in Mississippi.

The 40-year-old three-term black legislator said he has grown tired of "the games that are played" in the Mississippi Legislature by one branch or the other passing legislation which it knows will die in the opposite branch.

"Now we pass bills in the House knowing full well they will kill them over in the Senate, or the Senate passes bills they now will be killed in the House," Frazier declared.

Under a unicameral legislature, this sort of chicanery and duplicity would be far less likely to happen, he believes. "A single branch would make it impossible for House members to hide behind senators or senators hide behind House members," Frazier said.

Ever since the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision in 1962 which ordered state legislatures to be constructed on a one-person-one-vote basis, many legislative scholars have questioned the validity of having two legislative branches, each set up on population.

"It doesn't make any sense to have a House and a Senate, both representing the same people," Frazier said. "It's like having two boards of supervisors in every county, or two city councils in every city."

Or, if you want to find an analogy in the business world, like a corporation having two boards of directors.

What may be appealing to a lot of Mississippians is the fact that it would cost a lot less to operate a one-house legislature than one with two houses.

Frazier said he had been given a fiscal note by the Legislative PEER Committee nearly two years ago that a unicameral legislature in Mississippi would result in a saving of $4 million a year.

A unicameral legislature, the lawmaker contends, would give the taxpayers greater protection from the influence of the "third house,"—the lobbyists. "Lobbyists are now able to kill legislation by getting a small number of House members or senators in their hip pocket...that's particularly so in the Senate because it is a smaller body," Frazier declared.

His proposal is to create a single-house legislature of 122 members, the same size as the present House of Representatives, doing away with the present 52-member Senate.

"Of course, you will hear a lot of legislators say they wouldn't want to run against senators, or put their friends out of office," Frazier said. "What we have to realize is that these seats don't belong to incumbent legislators, they belong to the people."

One other important aspect of Frazier's proposal is that it would eliminate the office of lieutenant governor, providing only for a presiding officer who would be elected from the ranks of the membership.

Nine states now do not have a lieutenant governor elected by statewide vote.

Frazier said that the present Mississippi system of a lieutenant governor being elected statewide and then given legislative powers in the Senate, "does not fit at all in the legislative system."

"If you are going to have an officer performing legislative tasks, he should be a member of that body," he said. "He should be responsive to the membership, as opposed to building his own power base."

Frazier had introduced a proposed constitutional amendment at the 1990 legislative session to create a unicameral legislature, but the measure received no consideration in committee and no public hearing.

In the 1991 session, Frazier said he will insist on having a public hearing on the proposal and give the people a chance to appear.

Or if the state Supreme Court reinstates the right of Mississippians to propose measures by initiative petitions, Frazier said he will seek to get the unicameral legislature plan on the ballot that way.

Company, which has facilities in Columbus.

Their message was to the point: Business needs workers with basic skills, not just reading and writing but the ability to adapt to a changing workplace. If we turn out those kinds of workers for business, business can keep them competitive and productive.

Mississippi is taking action right now to make sure our education system is in tune with the needs of business. Just recently, I appointed the Mississippi Commission on Work Force excellence. The commission will recommend ways Mississippi can make sure we have job training programs that work.

Also while in Natchez, we had the Mississippi Mobile Learning Lab on display because being able to read and write is one of the most important factors in getting and keeping a good job.

Finally, I was very pleased to be named lead governor in heading up the Southern Regional Project on Infant Mortality. Reducing the rate at which babies die here in Mississippi and the South is very much related to providing a strong work force. In October, we will hold a Southern Summit in Richmond, Va. to address the problem of infant mortality head on.

Strong minds and a healthy people are essential to progress in Mississippi and the South, and the Southern Governors' Association meeting in Natchez showed that we are working hard to make that a reality for everyone.

BMR officials project dismal oyster season

Late winter flooding and practically no development of young oysters over the past several years spell P-O-O-R-S-E-A-S-O-N for Mississippi oystermen this year, Bureau of Marine Resources officials say.

John Cirino, BMR shellfish program coordinator, says that the 1990-91 oyster season promises to start late, end early and holds the distinct possibility of keeping the state oyster dredging reefs closed.

Cirino projected that there will be a 15,000-to-20,000-sack oyster harvest this season, only if the BMR is successful in upgrading some reefs, allowing oysters on those reefs to be harvested.

If these efforts fail, Cirino projects a 10,000-to-15,000-sack harvest.

Last year, 15,778 sacks of oysters were harvested in Mississippi, with an average dock-side value of $30 a sack. A sack of oysters produces between five and eight pounds of oyster meat, with a retail value of between $6 and $8 a pound.

In past years, Cirino said, flooding of the western Mississippi Sound has come in March or April, usually caused by the opening of the Bonnet Carré Spillway in Louisiana, with a high oyster mortality on Mississippi reefs appearing in June and July.

These years usually produced a favorable saltwater-freshwater ratio conducive for high numbers of young oysters, called spat, to settle on Mississippi reefs in September and October. These high spat sets have resulted, in the past, with a large harvest the following year.

However, since 1985, the entire Gulf of Mexico has been suffering a drought causing waters to be too salty for young oysters to develop. As a result, the number of oysters available to replenish the oyster stocks has steadily declined each year.

But this year has been different, Cirino said. "We've had spat, young oyster failure over the past several years, leaving fewer oysters to reproduce on the reefs. This year the rains came early—in January and February, due to localized flooding—and wiped out most of the remaining oysters on the reefs in the western Sound."

Cirino said that St. Joseph Reef, a dredging reef in the western Sound suffered a 90 percent oyster mortality during the early 1990 rains as did the Waveland tonging reef.

Subsequent samples taken on dredging reefs at Henderson Point and Pass Christian, showed very few oysters present on these reefs even though flood mortality was minimal.

"We want to conduct more intensive sampling of these dredging reefs before we decide if we'll open them to dredging this year," Cirino said. "If I were an oyster fisherman, I would want to buy my dredging license until the results of these samples are in."

Many of the oyster larvae which later turn into spat and root themselves on oyster reefs have been washed away from the Biloxi and Terrebonne Louisiana waters, as they usually do.

"While the droughting this year, Louisiana is still in a drought which caused high salinity in Louisiana waters. This, in turn, caused no significant oyster development in the marsh," Cirino said. "So this year, we're not having much spat produced by oysters in our own waters, and we're not getting any spat coming in from Louisiana waters either."

Oysters require a delicate balance of fresh and saltwater to thrive. Too much saltwater causes predators such as conchies, called oyster drills, to devastate oyster beds.

Too much freshwater prevents oysters from feeding. If high levels of freshwater persist over a long period of time, the oysters will starve to death.

The salvation of the 1990-91 oyster season lies in the Graveline Bayou oyster reef in Jackson County, and in the possibility that the Bay St. Louis reef, which has been closed for several years, may be opened for harvest.

Bureau officials tried last year to get federal Food and Drug Administration Officials to give the OK to opening the Bay St. Louis reef, which is located between the US-90 and CSX Railroad bridges spanning the Bay of St. Louis.

"We (the bureau) thought the reef should have been opened last year, but the FDA wouldn't give approval for it," Cirino said. "They (the FDA) said that we didn't conduct enough studies to indicate that the oysters there were not a threat to public health."

Cirino said that he did not have enough staff or money to conduct all the necessary studies. But this year, his staff has concentrated their efforts in collecting data to show that the Bay St. Louis reef should be opened.

"I think that we have enough data now to show that these oysters (on the Bay St. Louis reef) don't pose a public health problem under certain conditions," Cirino said.

Cirino said samples indicate that 5,000 to 8,000 sacks of oysters could be harvested from the Bay St. Louis reef if it is opened this year.

Graveline Bayou, in the eastern Sound, opened last season for the first time in 14 years, with 11,800 sacks taken from the bayou. A lot to keep the 1989-90 oyster season from being a complete failure.

Graveline was opened after extensive studies showed that residences and businesses had abandoned the use of septic tanks and hooked into the water treatment sewage systems, reducing the amount of sewage flowing into the bayou.

If eaten by humans, oysters contaminated with sewage can cause such diseases as hepatitis and cholera.

The Banks Lake area, in the eastern Sound, largely depends on oyster relaying for harvestable oysters each year. Relaying is taking oysters from polluted waters and placing them in clearer waters to purify themselves. Generally, oysters can purify themselves in 14 days.

A relaying program initiated by Jackson County officials and the BMR has produced promising results. While it is still too early to claim success, the bureau is committed to continuing this effort.

The Conservationist, the BMR's oyster relaying boat, has been in the shipyard since early June and is not expected to return to work until sometime in late September or early October. This means that no oysters have been relayed during the summer.

"When the boat is ready, the bureau expects to resume relaying activities, providing that funds, staff, time and oyster resources are available," Cirino said.

As for further young oyster development this year, Cirino said that specialist with Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs say that conditions are right for oysters to make a fall spawning, but any spat that results from a spawning this fall will not reach the legal harvestable length of three inches until 18 months after they have set.

School, work transition program offered at HHS

Senator Victor Frankiewicz toured the new Hancock High School with Mark France, teacher in the "Jobs for Mississippi Graduates" (JMG) program.

They discussed a new program which offers training in employability skills, self-esteem and self-confidence.

It is a school-work transition program that is gaining ground in Mississippi, with a total of six school systems in the state participating at this time, including Hancock County, Jones County, Meridian, Hollandale, Jackson Public, and Forest.

High school seniors are taught in a classroom setting

Hawks look for fourth win

By Belinda Liles

The Hancock Hawks welcome a new opponent this week as they play host to the Lawrence County Cougars this Friday night at the Hancock North Central football stadium.

The Hawks were ranked seventh in the state in The Associated Press' weekly Top 20 poll of Mississippi High Schools.

The Cougars, who will be traveling from Monticello, are a Class IV-A District 7 team. They bring with them a 2-1 season record.

When asked about the scouting report, coach Tim Favre replied, "This team is big and strong. They run a double tight end with a split back offense and they throw in some ace once in a while."

Coach Fred Bilbo added, "This is the hardest hitting team that I've seen so far."

The Hawks are going into the game this week with a 3-0 record after a close game against Poplarville last week.

"We played a sloppy game last week," said head coach Irvin Favre. We did have a good kicking game, which helped to get us out of a tight spot several times."

He added, "We have to play better defense and keep our heads in the game to win this week. Lawrence County's offense is very big, averaging 255 pounds on the line. They don't play a fancy game. They play hard-nosed football and they run right at you. Their defensive players average 200 pounds on the line and are very tough."

Hawk starter Bobby Doyle suffered bruised ribs in last week's game, but is expected to start against the Cougars Friday.

The Hawks are expecting a big turnout this week to welcome the Cougars to Hawk territory for the first time.

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m.

Pirates host Crusaders in Pass

By Patrick McKee

The Pass Christian Pirates will take on the Mercy Cross Crusaders Friday night at 7:30. The battle will take place on the Pirate's home turf.

According to assistant coach Glenn Williams the game is a very important one for the Pirates to win.

"It's a pride factor," he said in an interview Tuesday. Williams explained that no team has scored against Pass Christian during regular game time. The only scoring that took place was in overtime when the Pirates lost to St. Stanislaus.

"We are real pleased with the effort that the kids have been making," Williams said. "They are doing what we ask them to

BHS hosts Vancleave

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Bay High Tigers are up against big competition this week in the face of disappointing losses in recent games.

The Tigers will be playing on home turf against Vancleave on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

"They are a strong team," said Gaudin of the Vancleave team. "If they have any weakness, it's their kicking game. They are a physical football team, and have more confidence."

Gaudin said "At this point we, the coaching staff and team, are disappointed."

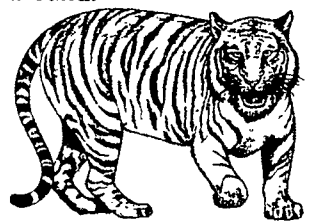

"We are fighting a two-three year losing habit," stated Gaudin. "This school hasn't won in 17 football games over the last three seasons."

"We will try to run the ball better and not give up the big play," said Gaudin.

"Our best receiver Thomas Brink," said Gaudin, "is probably out for the season with a knee injury. Numbers are getting thin. We are down to 26 healthy players."

Coach Rocky Gaudin said, "We hope the people continue to support us. We are trying. It will turn around."

Rocks face Long Beach Friday

Special to the Echo

BY TOM ACKERMAN

Following their loss last week at the hands of the East Central Hornets, 6-2, the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws will have their work cut out for them this week.

Traveling to face the Long Beach Bearcats, the Rocks will be playing their first district game of the season, and, according to SSC head football coach Ken Lyons, that may pose some problems.

"Long Beach remains somewhat of a mystery team," Lyons said, looking ahead to tomorrow night's contest. "They've played two close games and lost to Ocean Springs by a large score last week." Overall, the Cats are 0-3.

But the Rocks' biggest problem could be overcoming their own feelings about their loss at East Central, and trying to regain their physical stamina after a very physical game against the Hornets.

"We feel disappointed over the close loss to East Central," Lyons said, "but we are determined to correct our mistakes and, also, to improve upon our physical contact skills. We expect to rebound 100 percent against Long Beach."

Overall the Rocks are 2-1 with wins over Pass Christian and Bay Senior High. Both of these teams have maintained a rivalry with the Rocks over the years, along with the Bearcats.

With both of those teams losing to SSC, Long Beach may be preparing to even the score.

In any case, Lyons adds, it promises to be an exciting matchup. "Since SSC and Long Beach are natural rivals, we should have a good game."

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night at Long Beach.

Last call for Bay soccer registration

Bay Area Youth Soccer extended final registration until Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon at Wal-Mart, Highway 90 in Waveland.

Parents are also educated about the sport. The Under 6 team will hold first practice Thurs., Sept. 20 at the Waveland Little League Field. Call 467-2366 or 467-3036 for additional information.

Bay High Junior Player of Week

Bay Junior High eighth grader Xavier Lewis, was named Junior High Player of the Week by the Bay High Athletic Club. He carried the ball 10 times for 119 yards and also played cornerback on defense.

Pearl River Wildcats ranked No. 2 in nation

Pearl River, ranked number two in the nation by the J. C. Gridwire, and Hinds will put their perfect records on the line Saturday when the Wildcats travel to Raymond to take on the Eagles.

Hinds, pre season favorites in the South Division, is sporting an unblemished 3-0 record after defeating Holmes, South west and Northwest.

Pearl River's perfect 3-0 ledger includes wins over North west, Jones and East Mississippi.

"There's not a better defensive front four in the league," said Mike Nelson, in his observation of the Eagles.

"They just may have the best group ever in this conference."

Last year the Eagles put together a 5-1 division mark and were 7-2-1 overall. Pearl River's record, including a 1-9 loss to the Eagles, was 3-3 and 5-5 overall.

"They (Hinds) were picked as the best in the South," said Nelson. "We'll know where we stand after this week's game."

The Wildcats will be playing without the services of starting quarterback Mel Hackbarth. The Oak Grove sophomore broke his left wrist during the first quarter of the PRC and East Mississippi game in Scooba.

"Losing Mel will hurt the team," said Nelson. "There is no doubt about it. He has worked hard to be our starter."

Freshman Tim Birotte (6'1 200) of Opelousas, La. took over for Hackbarth against the Lions. Hackbarth, before leaving the game, connected with Reggie Austin for an 80-yard completion to put PRC in front.

Early in the third quarter, Birotte scored from three yards out to regain the lead for the Wildcats. Freshman Colby Stewart (6'2-185) from Prentiss will move up to the number two quarterback position.

"I was pleased with our defense this past week," said Nelson. "They kept us in the game." Nelson said he was concerned with his offense, especially the kicking game.

For three weeks in a row the Wildcats' first extra point has been missed. "This really puts us in a bind," said Nelson. "During practice and pre-game our kickers look fine. But it turns sour when the game starts."

Getting 'Player of the Week' awards for their performances against East Mississippi were defensive tackle Wallace Clark on defense, offensive tackle Kirk Champagne on offense and Sean Bennefield on special teams.

"We must have our best team performance of the year," said Nelson. "A Pearl River win this week would certainly make The River roll."

The Eagles, according to Nelson, run the option well. "They have two very quick, but small, quarterbacks," said Nelson. "They can scramble and they have a big fullback which will keep you honest up the middle."

Since 1956 the Wildcats have won 25 games while losing 13 to the Eagles. Two contests have ended in ties.

Last year the Eagles won 19-7 and in 1988 the two played to a 27-27 tie. Hinds won 26-22 in 1987 and PRC won 14-7 in '86. Hinds won the 1983, '84 and '85 games. PRC took the two before that.

Raiders claim second win

The Coast Episcopal Raiders scored on a 10-yard touchdown pass from Bruce Hull to Dave

The third quarter saw the Raiders score on a 31 yard run by Necaise with Necaise also

QB Bruce Hull drops back to pass

Hagan with 37 seconds left in the game to lift Coast Episcopal to a 31-30 come from behind victory over West Florida Baptist Academy.

The win was the second in a row for the Raiders since they snapped a 29-game losing streak.

The excitement began early in this contest as senior Jack Coggin returned the opening kickoff 72 yards for a touchdown putting the Raiders on top 6-0. The two-point conversion failed when a pass from senior Hull to junior Adam Farragut fell incomplete.

On the Raiders' next possession, Hull connected with junior Rusty Necaise for the 74-yard scoring strike making the score 12-0. The two-point conversion once again failed.

West Florida took over momentum for the remainder of the first half scoring on runs of seven yards, 84 yards and 15 yards to post an 18-12 halftime lead.

running in the two-point conversion. This put the Raiders back on top 20-18 with 2:19 left in the third quarter.

West Florida answered quickly as they connected on a 52-yard pass putting them back on top 24-20 as the quarter ended.

The Raiders bounced back in the fourth quarter with Hull connecting with sophomore Dave Hagan on a 20-yard pass. Hull then passed to Farragut for the two-point conversion giving the Raiders a 26-24 lead with 10:03 left in the contest.

West Florida again regained the lead this time on a 45-yard run with two-point conversion making the score 32-28.

On the Raiders' next possession, they drove deep into West Florida territory before a fumble stopped the drive. West Florida took over the football and were set on running out the clock, but a stubborn Raider defense held on fourth and three from the Raiders' 48.

The Raiders, who were out of time outs, moved the ball down to the West Florida 10-yard line before Hull connected with Hagan for the winning touchdown.

The Raiders picked up 727 yards of total offense, 347 on the ground and 380 through the air.

"We really had them confused on defense," said Raider coach Jack Hutchinson. "I don't think you can run the run and shoot offense much better than we did, especially in the second half. We were successful with both the run and the pass."

"The kids playing here at coast have gotten a taste of winning. They found out Friday do." Mercy Cross won their first game of the season last week against Fruitdale of Alabama. Williams indicated that the Crusaders will play a good game now that they have won a game.

"They will be ready to go. I just hope that we continue to play good football," he said. Although the Pirates did not have any injuries in last week's victory over Sumrall, the team is still missing two key players from prior injuries. Eldon Daniels is still out with a small fracture in his foot, and Mark Dedeaux has suffered a knee injury.

Williams praised the effort of the Pirate's offensive line against Sumrall. He singled out the contributions of Donald Knight, Delton Lizana, Thad Williams, Steve Biggs, Steve Dedeaux and Trampas Ladner. "They did a heck of a job," he said.

Williams also pointed out the outstanding job running back Jerome Malley has been doing. He cited Malley's improved effort, especially over the past few weeks.

Four players earned a 'Player of the Week' award. On the offense, awards were given to Donald Knight and Delton Lizana. On defense, Earl Washington was given the honor. And on special teams, Gordon Ward was picked.

Williams expressed confidence that the Pirate's running game was in good shape, and the passing game was "coming around."

"The receivers did a good job," said Williams about last week's game. "Tracey is doing a good job, too," referring to the Pirate's quarterback.

"As long as we continue to have a good group effort, we're going to be OK. Everybody is excited. I just hope we continue to play good football."

night, that as long as they don't quit, anything is possible."

Coast puts its two-game winning streak on the line Friday night when they play host to Riverside in their homecoming game at Pass Christian.

"Riverside has a very good football team and are well coached. We'll have to play really well defensively if we want to make it three in a row," said Hutchinson.

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Pass Christian City Park field.

Montjoy, a junior, is the son of Merry Montjoy of Pass Christian and Paul Montjoy of Diamondhead. Montjoy, the center for the Raiders, was effective in blocking which helped the Raiders amass 340 yards rushing. This is Montjoy's first year to play football at Coast.

Lawyer, a senior, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lawyer of Pass Christian. Lawyer, a defensive tackle, came up with big plays, especially late in the game. This is Lawyer's second year to play at Coast.

The next home game is Friday against Riverside at the Pass Christian City field. Kick-off is at 7:30 p.m.

Speedway race winner

David Ncaise, shown with the Sledgehammer Racing Team, took home a five-foot trophy Saturday, Sept. 8 in Dirt Car Racing at the Checkered Flag Speedway in Biloxi. With the "professionalism" of the track flagman, who flagged the race, Ncaise was able to keep a 15-car lead throughout the race and bring home the trophy.

Eagles drop close game against Georgia

Favre continues to improve

It was only a week ago that a Jim Taylor 52-yard field goal paced the University of Southern Mississippi to a 27-24 road victory over Alabama; and while the opportunity was there for a repeat Saturday at Georgia, the results were slightly different—say about six inches different.

After leading 10-3 at one point in the first half, and 17-6 midway through the third period, coach Curley Hallman's Golden Eagles watched as the Georgia Bulldogs kept the Eagles off the scoreboard in the final period and scored TD's in both the third and fourth periods to post a come-from-behind 18-17 victory in Athens, Ga.

That fourth period TD marked the first points of the year given up by USM in the final stanza.

But the Dogs kept the Eagles from winning by the narrowest of margins, a margin of inches. After punting and holding the Bulldogs late in the game, USM got a final shot at winning in the form of a 42-yard Taylor field goal attempt that looked good until the final instant when it hit the right upright and bounded back onto the playing field.

While it was a disappointing loss, Hallman had no trouble finding bright spots.

"I think I saw a better team out there today than the one I saw a week ago (at Alabama)," he said. "And you can bet that they'll work even harder in the week ahead and be ready for Mississippi State. Give Georgia the credit due. I thought we played hard against a talented and physical team, and still managed to put ourselves in a position to win."

The latest game also was the most productive of the year for the Eagles, who held a healthy lead in time of possession (32:04-27:56), led 267-250 in total offense in what proved to be the Eagles' best output thus far this season and played stellar defense against an explosive Bulldog team before a hostile crowd of almost 80,000.

Individually, Kerry Valrie came up with his fourth interception of the season and returned it for 11 yards, Brett Favre continues to improve as he hit 11 of 20 passes for 136 yards and a pair of TD's, Eddie Ray Jackson rushed for 65 yards on 16 carries, five different Golden Eagle receivers caught two passes each, led by Michael Jackson's 64 yards and rod Lynch was credited with a game-high 12 tackles while teammates Arnie Williams and Valrie added eight each.

Now at 2-1 and winners of six of their last nine games, the Eagles now will spend the week getting ready for their third straight road game and third straight SEC opponent, Mississippi State. That game will be played Saturday at 6 p.m. in Starkville.

MSU-USM final matchup on tap Saturday

The Bulldogs and the Golden Eagles square off at Scott Field for the first time since 1980 Saturday night in the 27th renewal of the Mississippi State-Southern Mississippi football rivalry.

Kickoff time is set for 6 p.m. and a near-capacity crowd of 40,000 is anticipated for the game, the final MSU-USM matchup under the current contract.

Energized by a 27-13 win over Cal State Fullerton last weekend, Mississippi State (1-1) closes out a season-opening three-game homestand at Scott Field in this weekend's meeting with Southern Mississippi.

The Golden Eagles (2-1) will be closing out a three-game SEC road swing after tangling with Alabama (27-24) and Georgia (17-18) the last two weekends.

Next week the Bulldogs resume Southeastern Conference play, traveling to Gainesville, Fla. to meet the Florida Gators. USM returns to Hattiesburg to host Louisville in the Golden Eagles' second campus appearance in 1990.

Bay High Players of Week

The Bay High Athletic Club has named Players of the Week for outstanding achievement on offense and defense during Friday night's game against Pearl River Central. No. 50 Kris Barlow, left, was chosen Defensive Player of the Week. He is credited with four solo tackles, two initial hits, one quarterback sack, two tackles for losses and causing a fumble. No. 12 Charlie Mitchell was named Offensive Player of the Week. He carried the ball three times for 25 yards and was five for 12 in completed passes. Mitchell punted the ball three times with a 42.5 yard average. On defense, he made three solo tackles and two initial hits. (Photo by Jimmy Loiacano)

Defining a Tazewell

BY TRACI BONNEY

What is a Tazewell? Well, beyond the maybe-not-obvious fact that it's a noun, a Tazewell is one of three things: 1) a "mad artist;" 2) his work; or 3) the coffee shop/art gallery he and two friends run in Pass Christian.

The "mad artist" is Tazewell (pronounced Taz-well) Sidney Morton III (the name is a family name), born in Birmingham, reared in Gulfport and currently residing in Pass Christian.

Tazewell, or "Taz," as his partners and lifelong friends Baxter and Ellen Jones call him, is a graduate of Auburn University with a degree in fine arts.

In 1958 he began what has become a very successful career in advertising and commercial art, when he started as a staff artist with Jackson Brewing Company in New Orleans.

During the next ten years, he worked in New Orleans, Birmingham, Boston and Atlanta. He eventually became president of two design firms, Morton-Yarbrough in Birmingham and Tazewell and Associates of Atlanta.

Next, he stepped into academia when he was selected assistant professor of art at the University of Georgia in 1970, where he was an instructor in graphic design. In 1973, he returned to Auburn University, this time as an associate professor of art.

While at Auburn he earned the distinction of being the only artist to ever have his work planted on the moon when he designed the Auburn University flag that was carried to and left on the moon by the crew of Apollo XVI.

Since 1975, Tazewell has worked as a freelance design artist and teacher of graphic design, first in Atlanta, then in New Orleans. He now divides his time between his gallery in Pass Christian and his work in New Orleans.

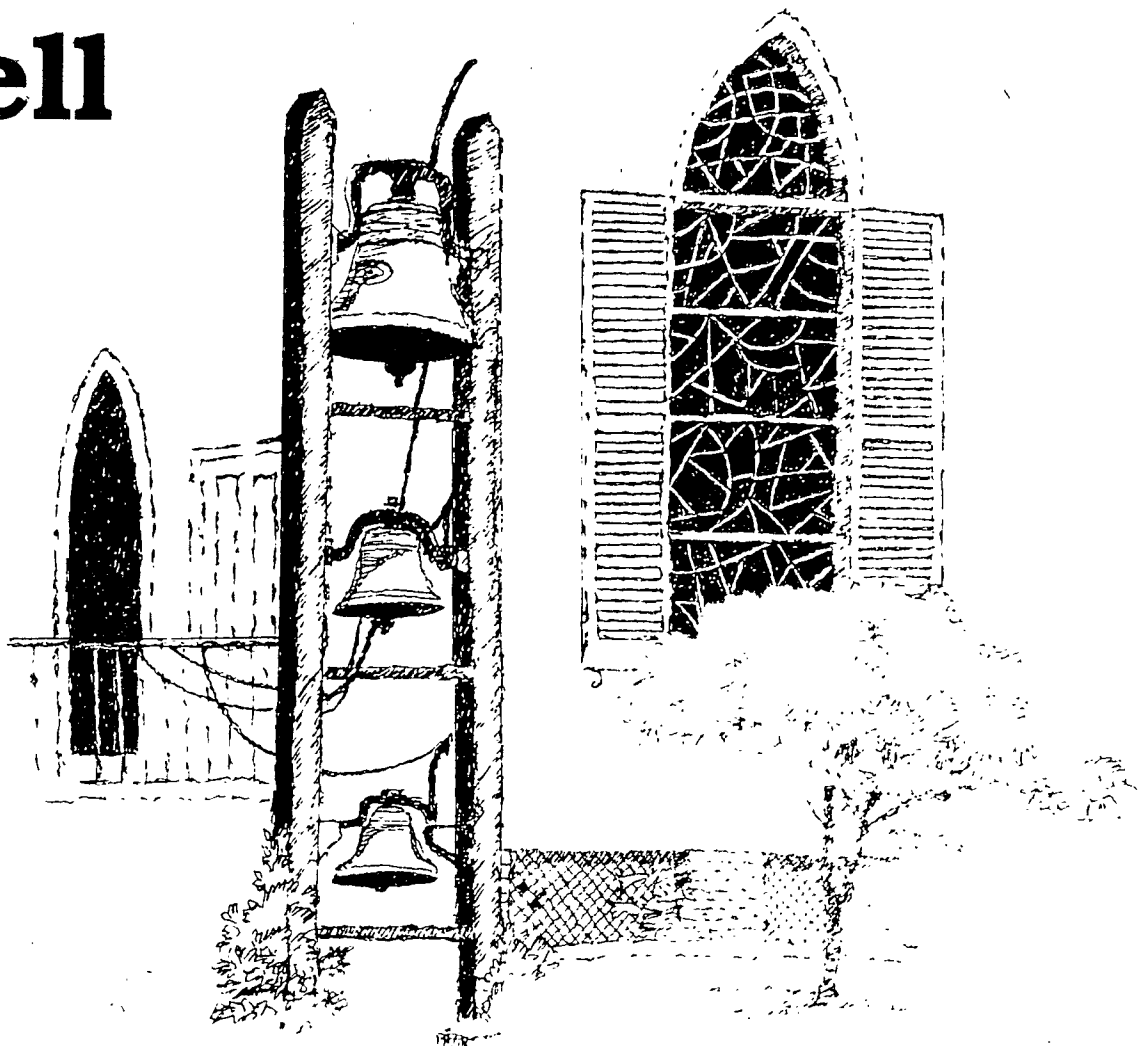

His commercial work includes a commemorative print for the Carter/Mondale victory in 1976 and the corporate logo for "Women in the Mainstream" of the National Business Women's Organization in 1983.

When asked to describe his work, Tazewell said, "Fabulous, wonderful, marvelous, spiritual — I don't know. Gumbo art."

"Gumbo art" is an apt description for the melange of media used and subjects portrayed, which somehow blends into a palatable representation of the artist. His paintings show both the influence of Pablo Picasso and the experience gained through his career as a commercial artist, while his pen-and-ink drawings are well-executed and rich in detail.

The subjects of his work range from pen-and-ink drawings of Pass Christian and other places he's lived, to realistically shaped and painted plywood Barq's and tabasco sauce bottles, from paintings of Mardi Gras scenes to sailboats to things found in the Bible. The tabasco sauce bottle and some of his other paintings even include Tazewell's recipe for "Seefood Gumbo."

Tazewell also paints and designs three-dimensional work using wood and other materials. Some of these works have religious themes,

"Trinity" — one of the pen-and-ink prints in Tazewell's Pass Christian series while others are whimsical, such as two birdhouses, complete with plastic birds on the perches, that are painted to look like open-mouthed cats.

His work is made even more distinctive (if that were possible) by the use of a cross and fish design, either painted or embossed, that is Tazewell's trademark and reflects his Episcopal background.

The third thing that is a "Tazewell" is the gallery, located on East Second Street next to the Colonnade and situated in a house once given to a freed slave named Winney.

The house has four main rooms and a kitchen. Baxter Jones, a retired Navy commander, said the place is divided according to those rooms. One, the "cream and sugar" room, is the coffee area, where visitors to the shop can talk and look at some of Tazewell's art while they sit and sip coffee served by Ellen Jones, Baxter's wife and the hostess of the establishment.

Tazewell said they plan to serve "fancy" coffees, such as imported Colombian brews, pastries and perhaps even gumbo or barbecued shrimp on occasion.

"We also want to put a patio out back, where people can sit and talk, when the weather is nice," Tazewell added.

Another room is the office, which looks like most offices (papers cluttering the desk, etc.), except for the number of Tazewell's commercial and personal prints on the walls.

The third room is the gallery, which currently features mostly Tazewell's work but also includes a "guest artist" wall. Tazewell said of this wall, "I have a lot of artist friends all over the country. I know a lot of people who will send work to us to be put on the wall."

"We also want to feature local artists."

The fourth room is what Baxter called the "cash register" room, the room displaying Tazewell's work that is for sale, in addition to boxes of pralines and other items.

"I don't want a cash register in here," Baxter said, "but this room is it in a figurative way. This is the room that will sell."

What is a Tazewell? Well, to quote a promotional release Baxter wrote: "Please note that leaving without enjoying is not a Tazewell."

Bay native's first book explores comedian's drug use

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Bay St. Louis native William Karl Thomas attempts to explain controversial comedian Lenny Bruce's relationship with drugs in his first book Lenny Bruce, The Making of a Prophet.

William Karl Thomas

Thomas worked with Bruce, who died at age 43, from 1956-66 in California. "I felt compelled to write this book because of the misdirection of so many other writers about Lenny. It has been written that drugs were beneficial to his career."

"From my vantage point, drugs were a detriment to it and did not contribute to his creativity," said Thomas.

"As a jazz musician, he was caught up in a 'hip' entertainment world where drugs were used by his intimate friends. His use of hard drugs and subsequent arrest were unfortunate spinoffs of exposure to that lifestyle."

Thomas said Bruce realized his dependence on drugs was a liability to his career and periodically tried to "dry out."

He considers his book to be an anti-drug statement.

He cites popular comedians Richard Pryor and George Carlin as the best examples of "using the freedom Bruce paid for", opposed to Eddie Murphy and 2-Live Crew, who have exploited that freedom, he said.

A 1950 graduate of Bay High School, Thomas currently resides in Tucson, Arizona. He has worked as a screenwriter and public relations representative for film producers.

His book is available locally at Bookends Bookstore and at Bookland in Biloxi.

Stennis Space Center kicks off 1991 Combined Agencies Campaign

The 1991 Combined Agencies Campaign charity drive kicked off Tuesday at NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center.

The campaign, which runs through Nov. 15, hopes to raise more than $145,000 to support needy organizations in south western Mississippi and south eastern Louisiana.

Dr. Jerry McCall, director of the National Data Buoy Center at SSC, is chairing this year's federal portion of the Stennis drive. Sverdrup's Lin Ward is coordinating the industrial side of the drive.

In remarks to employees attending the ceremony, McCall emphasized the need to support the programs that offer assistance to those encountering life's difficult situations because "all of us at some time need another's help."

McCall was optimistic about reaching this year's goal. "SSC has had successful campaigns every year, and we anticipate an equally successful one this year," he said.

Stennis Space Center's Combined Federal Campaign is part of the Mississippi Coast Association of Federal Administrators' annual effort to support local charities.

The CFC solicits contributions from the 25,000 federal employees on the Gulf Coast.

The goal of this year's drive reflects the combined contributions of SSC's federal and industrial contractor employees. Stennis Space Center's federal agencies have pledged $85,750 for the drive. Over $60,000 has been pledged by the private companies.

Contributions from the Combined Agencies Campaign will go toward supporting needy agencies in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties in Mississippi, and St. Tammany Parish and the greater New Orleans area in Louisiana.

WILLIAM JAMES JR.

Power production topic of U.S.-Soviet seminar

Bay St. Louis native William James Jr., president and general manager of Northeast REMC, represented the United States in a meeting with utility specialists in the Soviet Union last week. The endeavor is part of the People to People International Program.

James is one of some 25 utility managers and specialists selected by the U.S. Ministry of Energy and Electrification to advise Soviets on power use.

The group was sponsored by the Citizen Ambassador Program of People to People, founded in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower to improve international communications.

The team was invited by the Soviets to share its knowledge of power management, long-term forecasting, conservation, efficient power generation, capital funding, technological assistance and other areas.

James said many of the policies that are common practice in the United States, such as power load management, are not known at all in areas of the Soviet Union.

James was selected to participate because of his background and achievements in the industry, especially in rural electrification.

He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William James and is married to the former Beverly Banderet, daughter of Mrs. Carl Banderet of Bay St. Louis and the late Mr. Banderet.

Tilapia aquaculture, a new product for Mississippi

The legendary "miracle" fish in the Bible could produce a miracle for Mississippi's economy.

Senator Vic Frankiewicz Jr. of Bay St. Louis inspected a fish farm south of Hattiesburg where Jack Robinson grows white Tilapia, an African species which legend claims Jesus fed to the multitudes in Bible accounts.

"I am enthusiastic about the prospects for Tilapia aquaculture. Tilapia is a tasty fish with a great market potential. Representatives of Iceland Seafood Corporation of Pennsylvania recognize this; they hope to market 10 million pounds of this fish each year.

This represents an enormous economic impact with the eventual addition of processing plants, feedmills and expansion of service industries," said Frankiewicz, who represents Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

"The Iceland officials told us that Mississippi is the ideal location for their company to pursue aquaculture because of abundant water supplies, good workforce, and favorable climate," he added.

The Senator said that he was impressed with Robinson's operation which utilizes an above-ground reservoir of rainwater which is recycled throughout the operation.

"Water conservation is important in aquaculture. Fish farms need millions of gallons of clean water each day. It is tough to take that from wells without hurting our groundwater supplies. Recycling water also keeps pond-raised fish from escaping into the state's natural waterways. Aquaculture operations on the Coast have had this problem in the past; recirculating systems will help us on the Coast," Frankiewicz said.

The Senate Agriculture, Rural and Economic Development Subcommittee committed to helping develop the project through ironing out aquaculture industry regulatory problems, committing state university personnel and funds for research, and promoting the product.

"The purpose of this subcommittee is to find new products which can be grown efficiently in Mississippi, help our farmers get into the business, and help find them guaranteed markets. We have so many natural resources here that we need to take advantage of, and we need to capitalize on processing our home-grown products," Frankiewicz said.

Waveland store temporarily barred from food stamp program

A Hancock County store has been barred from participating in the food stamp program because of program violations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service reports.

Lil's Super Food Mart, 315 Coleman Avenue, Waveland, owned by Fred J. Peterman Jr. was disqualified for six months based on evidence showing that store personnel sold light bulbs, bleach and fabric softener for food stamps.

James E. Salter, of the Food and Nutrition Service's Jackson office, said food stamps can be used legally only to buy food or seeds and plants to be used in gardens to grow food.

Salter explained that before being authorized to accept food stamps from customers, store owners must agree to abide by food stamp program rules. Violations of the rules result in stores being disqualified from the program for periods of time ranging from six months to permanently.
